

HINDY WEBER

From Seed to Style

HINDY WEBER is an ecological and ethical fashion label founded by Filipino designer, biodynamic farmer, and holistic lifestyle advocate, Hindy Weber.

Hindy started her love for fashion in her mother's closet where she would play dress-up. This quickly evolved into cutting up her mom's favorite dresses then piecing them back together into a new look. She spent countless hours studying every article, caption, advertisement and editorial in the foremost fashion publications of the 1990's. It was the Golden Era of magazines after all, and they were her encyclopaedia. She sketched portraits, imaginary runway collections, and abstract doodles. In between art and fashion, Hindy immersed herself in nature and the study of wildlife. Her first childhood dream was to become a wildlife conservationist. This passion later manifested as a country home surrounded by a quaint farm where she could grow organic food and raise animals humanely. This farm became Holy Carabao Farm and is now a leading distributor of organic produce in Manila that also conducts farm tours and workshops on holistic nutrition and agriculture.

After studying Fashion Design & Marketing in New York City, Hindy dove head first into the retail industry in Manila. For 11 years, she was a private label designer and brand-builder for 7 different brands in Rustan's department store — designing womenswear, swimwear, childrenswear and women's accessories for 33 seasons. While she loved the process of design, she began feeling disheartened by the automations of the fashion industry. In 2011, she took a sabbatical, moved away from the city, raised a family, spent more time in nature, and, on occasion, designed bridalwear and eveningwear for a select few clients.

After an eight-year hiatus, Hindy returns with her own label, beginning with a prêt-à-porter collection produced on her own terms — free from seasonality, trends, and wasteful processes.

The 30-piece collection is crafted from natural, raw, organic and biodegradable materials. We adhere to sustainable design practices including using certified organic textiles, reusable or natural trimmings, plant and water-safe dyes, and ethical manufacturing. We work only with small family-run workshops that support the livelihood of women seamstresses. That the packaging, accessories and collaterals are also produced ecologically is imperative to our brand's ethos.

The fashion industry is the second largest polluter in the world. And we refuse to contribute to that just because we want a pretty dress.

We are the antidote to fast-fashion.

We follow the revolutionary slow-fashion movement to ensure that we never overproduce garments that end up in landfills.

Our top-of-mind consideration is of our workers' wellness and that of our planet's. It is not an easy task, but we do our best within what is currently possible, always looking for new solutions in order to ensure that our love for high-quality fashion remains a creative — not destructive — endeavour.

Our designs are redefined ready-to-wear. They are timeless, but not ordinary.

Simple, but not monotonous. Luxurious, without pomp. Uncomplicated, but nonetheless extraordinary. Each piece can be matched a multitude of ways, and can take you from sala to a meeting to the beach to a nightclub and back home again.

Fashion that makes you free to be all kinds of you.
